Batch Plant Nixed

The Oceanside Planning Commission reversed an earlier ruling Monday evening and voted against a concrete batch plant which was proposed to be located adjacent to a creek.

The Robertson's Ready Mix plant would manufacture 1,200 cubic yards of concrete a day. A batch plant makes concrete for industrial uses.

Outraged protesters said the plant, to be at 2847 Industry St., would be flooded in heavy rains and would carry concrete dust and other pollutants into Loma Alta Creek. The creek drains into the ocean at Buccaneer Beach, where contaminated water frequently causes the beach to be closed.

The commission vote was 5-2 to deny the plant.

In October 2006, commissioners voted 4-3 in favor of the project. Their approval was appealed to the City Council, but the company took back its application before the council could hear the matter.

The application later was resubmitted to the commission, with an upgraded environmental document.

Vista City Leaders See Progress in the City

On the anniversary of Vista's incorporation, city leaders yesterday said the economy will be a challenge in the coming years, but they see signs of progress in the community.

Mayor Morris Vance, one of several speakers at the Chamber of Commerce's "State of the Community" luncheon, said Vista anticipates lower tax revenues over the next few years. The city won't replace as many employees, Vance said, and residents will "probably see some cuts in programs."
