staff and student representatives.

Finalists will be interviewed June 13 and the winner will serve from July 1 until December 31st, or until a permanent president-superintendent is hired.

Hendrickson was being paid $217,000 a year as interim leader of the college following the resignation of Victoria Munoz Richart who left with a settlement of cash and benefits estimated at $1.6 million.

San Marcos Facing Decision on Slow Growth Measure

Within a week or two the San Marcos City Council will decide whether to adopt a slow growth measure or allow it to go forward on the ballot this coming November.

The slow-growth measure, officially known as the San Marcos Growth Management and Neighborhood Protection Act, would require a public vote for any change to the city's general plan that would increase density or intensity of land use.

The entire city council is opposed to the measure but awaits the reports of a study it commissioned last month that will examine the financial impacts of the initiative. While the council may adopt the measure, it also may let it go to the ballot. The smart money is betting they will vote that way and take the time between now and election day to inform the electorate about the initiative and the impact it would have on San Marcos.

Sponsors of the initiative were dealt a heavy blow to their cause last week when San Diego Superior Court judge ruled against the plaintiff's who brought a lawsuit against the city of San Marcos, claiming the environmental impact report was deficient. This appeared to clear the way for Palomar Station to move forward, a mixed use project of 14.3 acres across from Palomar College.

The other major project that could conceivably be impacted by both the court decision and the slow-growth measure is that of the San Marcos Creek Walk project. Opponents of both projects claim San Marcos does not have the infrastructure to accommodate them.

San Marcos City Councilmembers and city staff, however, point to the healthy grown San Marcos has enjoyed, with attractive homes and well designed shopping and service areas. They argue that the slow-growth initiative will do just that, slow down the healthy growth the community has been experiencing.

13. They lived in a typical suburban neighborhood with picket fences that resembled Nancy Kerrigan's teeth.

14. John and Mary had never met. They were like two hummingbirds who had also never met.

15. He fell for her like his heart was a mob informant, and she was the East River.

16. Even in his last years, Granddad had a mind like a steel trap, only one that had been left out so long, it had rusted shut.

17. The plan was simple, like my brother-in-law Phil. But unlike Phil, this plan just might work.

18. The young fighter had a hungry look, the kind you get from not eating for a while.
19. He was as lame as a duck. Not the metaphorical lame duck, either, but a real duck that was actually lame, maybe from stepping on a land mine or something.
20. Her vocabulary was as bad as, like, whatever.
