the Mingei Museum in San Diego and director of the Children's Museum in San Diego.

Pahl said now that the museum's expansion is complete, it's a good time for him to step down.

"The museum's in good shape," he said. "I think it's time to turn it over to some other younger person and begin the next stage."

The museum has four full-time employees, four part-time employees and a $700,000 annual operating budget. It hosts about 15 exhibits each year.

Russe said a committee has been formed to search for Pahl's replacement, and the group hopes to find a new leader within six months.

building at 704 Pier View Way became a full-time arts venue.

Under his leadership, the museum underwent a $6 million expansion project completed in 2008 that increased the museum's size from 5,000 square feet to 21,000 square feet.

Modernist architect Frederick Fisher designed the two-story project to connect with the existing building designed in the 1930s by noted architect Irving Gill.

The new wing earned a 2008 Orchid award from the non-profit San Diego Architectural Foundation.

But the changes at the downtown venue have been more than just physical.

Museum board President Beate Russe said Pahl's leadership has helped make the museum a cultural hot spot in North County.

"He really made his mark through his leadership and made the museum what it is today," Russe said. "He's such a creative, amazing person who knows his community and knows the art world."

Russe said Pahl designed innovative programs ---- culinary cinema series, jazz concerts, Art After Dark social gatherings and free family days ----- to bring new visitors to the museum.

"He really expanded arts throughout the whole community," Russe said. "His diverse exhibitions really touched on all of the unique cultures in the area."

Pahl also helped the museum receive two $300,000 James Irvine Foundation grants and led a capital campaign that helped pay the museum's $750,000 construction debt.

Before working at the Oceanside museum, Pahl worked for the fine arts department of the Los Angeles Fair, and served as deputy director of Hooper, a recent University of California, Davis grad who has a passion for education reforms and legislative process. In college, Julie was Vice President of the Undergraduate Association and interned at the Republican National Committee (RNC) in Washington, DC. Following her fellowship experience, she aims to attend graduate school and focus on political communications. Julie is excited to be a part of our team and we're just as thrilled to have her serving our 38th Senate District.

Senator Mark Wyland represents the people of the 38th Senate District, which includes cities in north San Diego County and the south Orange County cities of San Clemente and San Juan Capistrano.

Announcing: The New Wyland Senate Fellow

By Senator Mark Wyland (R-Carlsbad)

One of the most distinguished programs around the Capitol is the California Senate Fellows (CSF) program. The CSF program offers college graduates a full-time staff position in the State Capitol where they'll gain hands-on public policy and communications experience that coincides with their classroom studies. These bright men and women interview with personal offices, committees and caucus staffs, and are then matched up with offices according to interest, personality and of course, political party.

the economy over the last few years. While there has been a slight up tick in employment and the housing market has steadied, we are nowhere near the boom times of the late 1990's.

The Legislative Analyst Office suggests that we take a steady approach to solving our budget woes and I couldn't agree more. Relying on massive tax hikes to close the deficit will do nothing but exacerbate our economic problems. Instead, we must focus on ways to create a more sustainable spending plan that is in line with our economic reality.

that he would leave his post as soon as a replacement is found.

He said he hopes to use his retirement to volunteer and complete a 20-foot wooden sailboat he's building in his backyard.

"It's an obsession," Pahl said about the boat. "I have been working on it for 10 years and I think it's time to get it finished."

Pahl was the first employee hired by the museum in 1997, when the former City Hall

Governor Declares Fiscal Emergency

By: Assemblyman Martin Garrick

This week, Governor Schwarzenegger is expected to exercise the powers granted to him by Proposition 58 and declare a fiscal state of emergency in California. As such, the Legislature would be called into a special budget session to fix an ever widening budget gap.

Recent estimates by the Legislative Analyst Office suggest that the current year budget deficit is $6.3 billion. Add to that a project shortfall of $14.4 billion for the upcoming 2010-11 fiscal year and you have another difficult budget year in Sacramento.
